KENSTON IS FACES

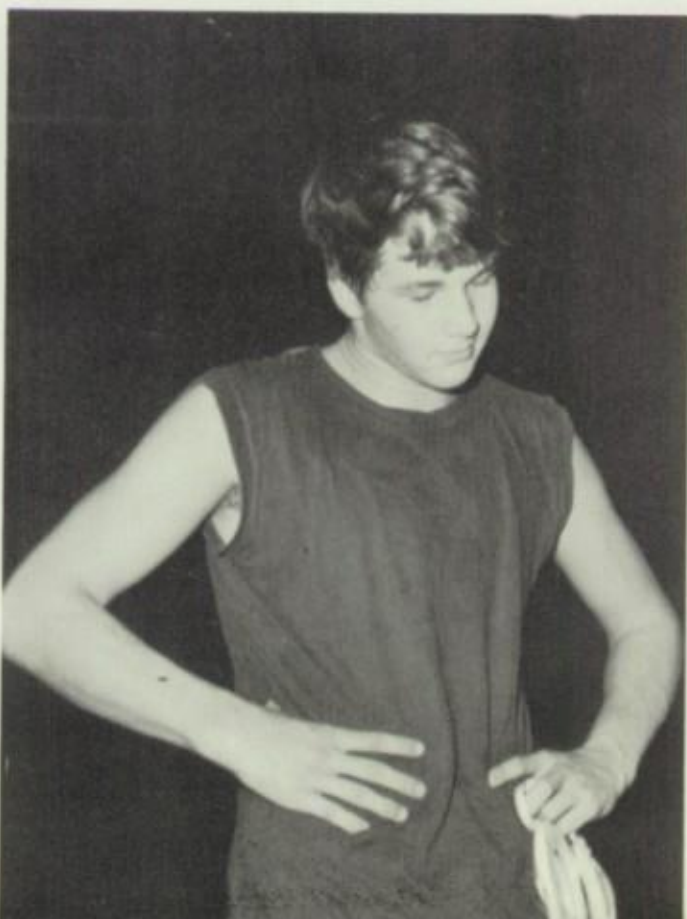

Kenston High School
Chagrin Falls, Ohio

Faces of Spirit

Jim at his best--orange eating

(3) We're a winner

Hold up that wall

These are the excited faces of Kenston in competition. They are changing faces. The athletes' worn out happiness or tired disappointment is reflected in the faces of the crowd. Sports is an essential expression on the face of Kenston.

Faces of Activity

The casualties of involvement

The bear carrying Debbie

The last and best senior activity

The extracurricular program enables the student to channel his interest into specific fields. An active student council organized the Sunshine Unlimited drive. The FHA gave a style show. FTA members taught in the elementary grades. The Industrial Arts Club repaired school equipment. Meetings, recreation, and community projects encourage meaningful participation in activities.

Kenston's social face is one of friendship. Old friends welcome new students into the collective personality. Only a small school can have Louie Bova and the Bainbridge Philharmonic Stereophonic . . . This friendship is felt at the dances, in the cafeteria, in the library, and in the halls.

Wowie-zowie--Saddle shoes

Good crops and wholesome living

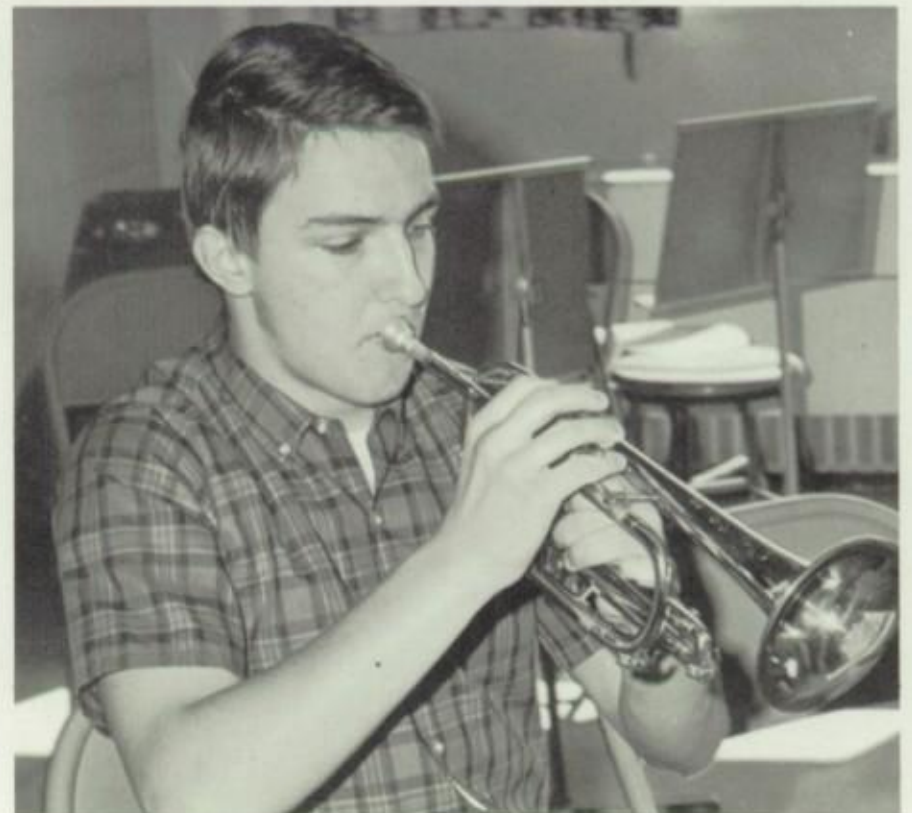

Faces at Play

Faces of Concentration

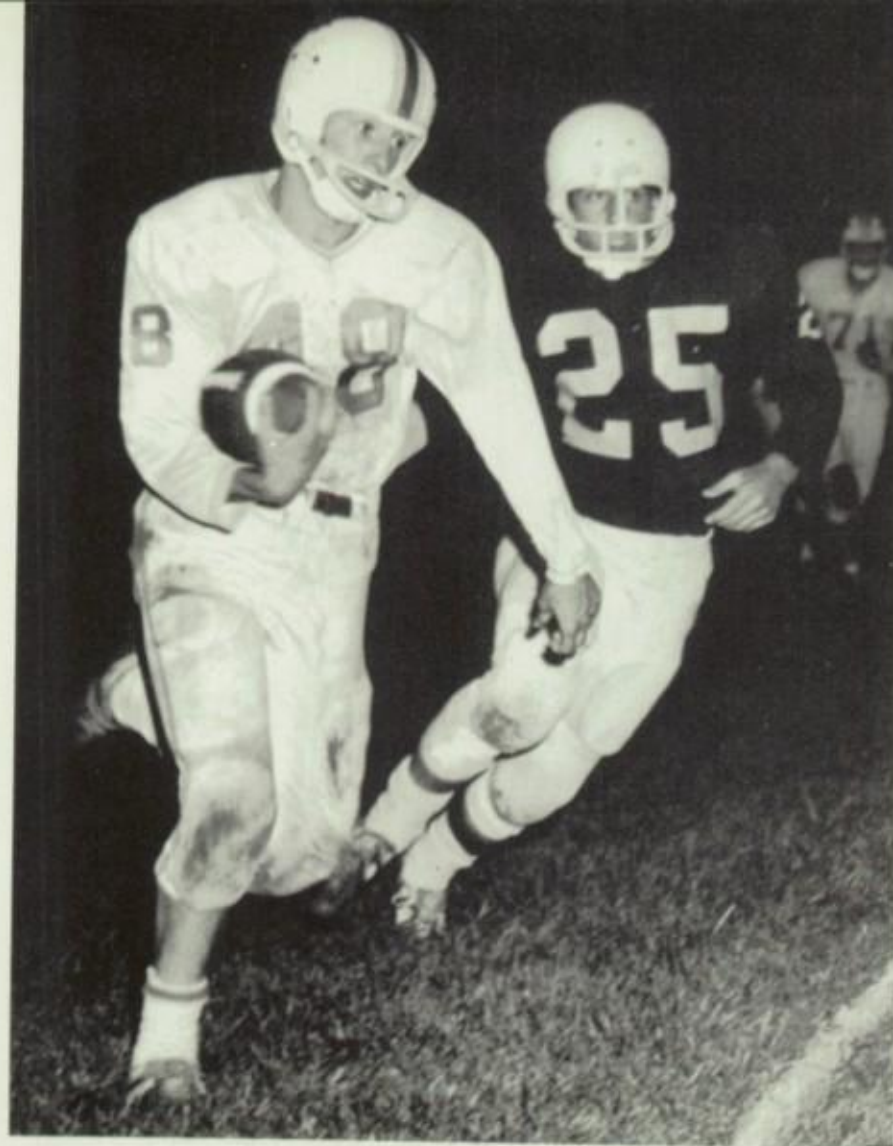

The face of Kenston turns primarily toward learning. Textbooks, teachers, discussion, and practice combine to generate scholarship. Exposure to many fields in high school gives Kenstonites background for career choice. Kenston's high rating when compared to national academic norms shows the industry of the students and faculty.

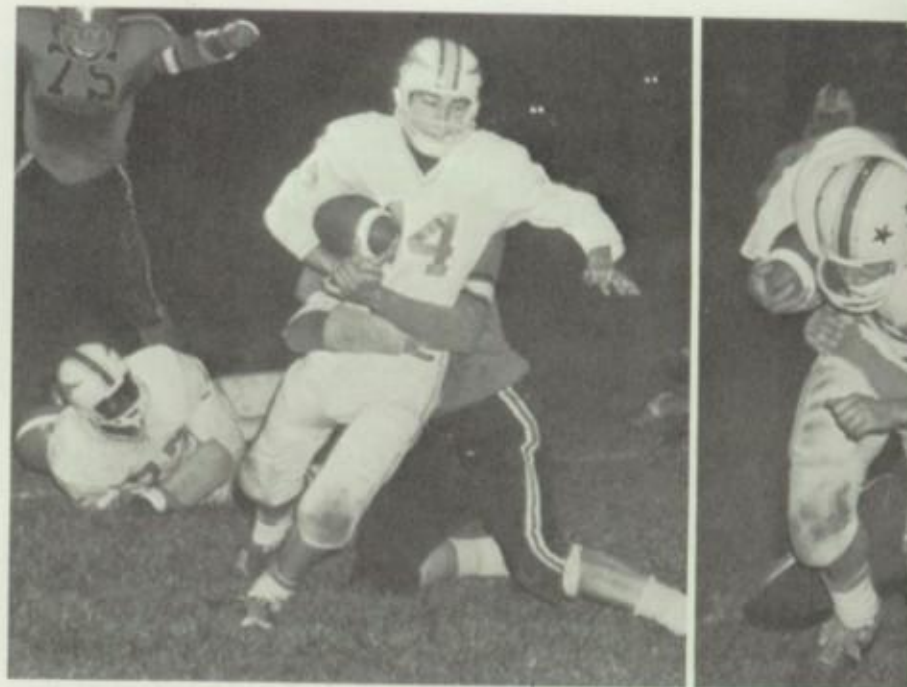

Some jokers just don't realize . . .

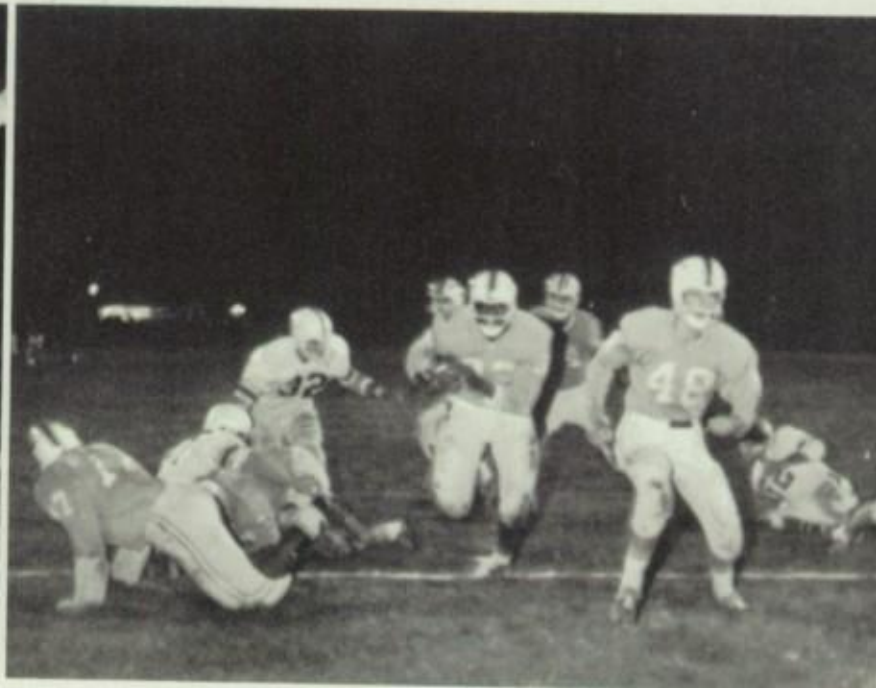

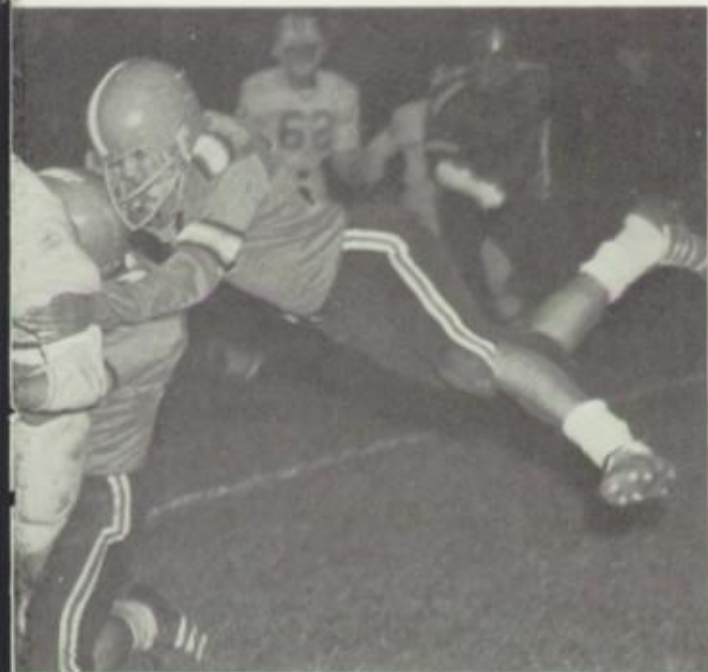

This was Coach Biar's first year at Kenston and he brought new energy to the team and the school. The Pep Club responded to Coach Bair's influence by buying a big stuffed bear. This was our first mascot and the coach informed the school that it was not a teddy bear, but a grizzly bear. The team lived up to its mascot in most of the games, but sometimes even grizzlies get tired.

THE UPS AND DOWNS . . .
AND SOMETIMES

A LOT OF

GOT THE SPIRIT?
LET'S HEAR IT.

Congratulations to Kenston's undefeated Freshman football team. This year's frosh tied with Chagrin for the CVC Championship. The team tied Chagrin and won all other games. The future for Kenston's football teams looks bright.

Freshman cheerleaders hand over the money they made in bake sales to pay for the team's helmets.

Cross-Country is becoming a popular and exciting sport. Kenston was fourth in the league and fourth in dual meet standings. Tyrone Lacey continually led the team and his 10 minutes 54 seconds set a school record. He also placed second in the league meet. Other outstanding runners were Hurst, English, Oates, Barker, and Seeger.

Kenston competed with 17 teams and placed 7th in the Aurora Invitational with 181 points. In the Warrensville Invitational Kenston, one of 18 schools competing, placed 9th with 238 points.

The Grapplers, under Coach Don Havener, finished second in the league. The crucial meet with Solon moved us from a tie for first to second, but the team kept up fine spirit. The enthusiasm of the team generated unprecedented interest and support from the students. Attendance at meets was good and we had our first wrestling cheerleaders. Kenston placed fifth in the sectionals and had four individual placers, Parrish (2), Thomas (2), Clemens (4), and Bloxson (3).

Charlie Thomas gets out of Twinsburg's grasp. He won that match (8--4) and went to Columbus to place sixth in the state.

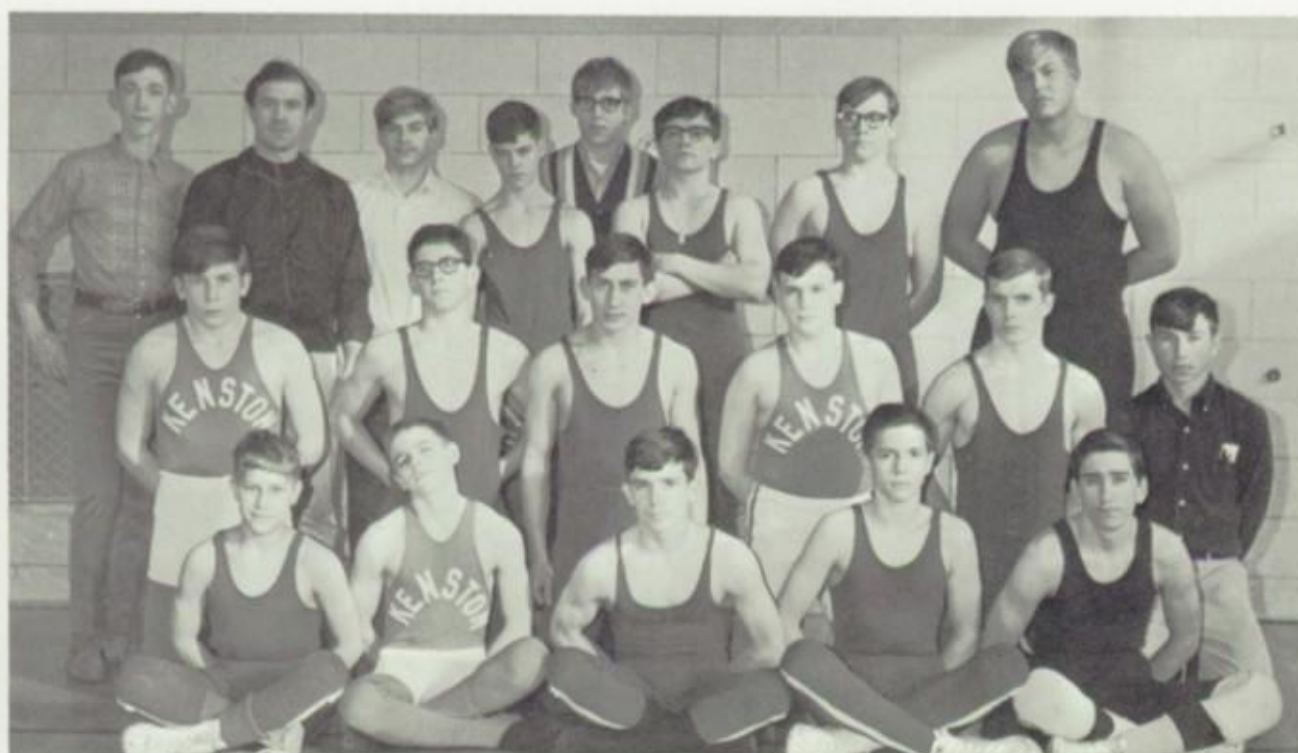

The Christmas Tourney

Sixteen teams competed in Kenston's third invitational tournament. Kenston placed first, by a score of 63--61 over her closest challenger, John Adams. Clemens and Thomas were champions in their weight classes. Other placers were Parish (2), Hamilton (2), Folwarczny (3), and Critzer (4). Kenston is proud to have won the trophy twice in three years.

Freshman Wrestling

Kenston's first Freshman wrestling team was undefeated in league meets and became Conference Champs. The Freshmen promise Kenston an excellent future in wrestling. Bill Korth, 95, and Scott Williams, 133, were undefeated.

The basketball team made an impressively unimpressive record this year of 2-16, but records don't tell the whole story. Many of the games were lost by a margin of five points. There were exciting points, but the season was a disappointing one for Kenston's basketball fans. All in all . . .

Mr. O'Neil says the 1968 track season was the best Kenston has had for years. There was more spirit, more records broken, more team members, more co-operation, and more rain than ever before. The team placed third at the league dual meet and sixth at the districts, where our mile relay took a third and Jack Seeger was second in high hurdles and fourth in low hurdles. Jack went to regionals and earned a fifth place in high hurdles. This outstanding team broke five school records:

Shot Put	Pat O'Brien 45'6"
Discus	Bruce Constant 135'4"
120 High Hurdles	Jack Seeger 15.0 sec.
180 Low Hurdles	Jack Seeger 20.2 sec.

Soul Serenade

The turnabout dance was an unprecedented girls-ask-boys event, sponsored by the Chagrin Falls Park Education Committee and the Student Council. The dance was a successful effort to promote interaction between races. Couples could have their pictures taken and Marryin' Sam performed wedding ceremonies for anyone interested. The Soul Band, Ray and the Legiers, was very popular and Tyrone Lacey and Sandra Birmingham won the dance contest.

George Bielert, Randy Oates, and Karen McConnell met students from Newbury and Mayfield High Schools on the television game, "It's Academic." They were seen January 6 on Channel 5 and placed second, beating Newbury. In April the Freshman team, Linda Meilander, Scott Mosenthal, and Cheryl Huberty competed with Memorial and JFK Junior High Schools, placing first.

Kenston was proud to have four students, Karen McConnell, Randy Oates, Margot Kleine, and Kit Hooker qualify on the National Merit Test and become Finalists. This is a very high percentage on the national average for a small school. Karen became a National Merit Scholar and received a $1000 Scholarship.

Members of the National Honor Society are chosen on the basis of character, scholarship, leadership, and service. This year for the first time the National Honor Society supported itself by selling sweatshirts and Zip Code directories. The Society inducted 23 new members from the Junior and Senior Classes at the annual assembly in May. A banquet was given for all members and their parents at which Captain John Hardy gave an excellent speech on "Time".

Student Council

Suzi Rogers and Mrs. Covert combined to make a dynamic Student Council this year. They began by distributing apples to all the teachers at the beginning of the year. Freshman and new students got a copy of the student handbook. The Council organized the Sunshine Unlimited Drive in which we soundly defeated Berkshire. Kenston did a lot of work with the CVCSC, including workshops and dances. Two exchange days were held during which representatives from Kenston visited other schools. The Council has tried to get more students interested and active in Kenston.

This was the pioneer year for NUGGETS. Editor Margot Kleine and advisor Mr. Robinson went through a lot of Excedrin, but the magazine came out consistently and of good quality. NUGGETS contained student commentaries on life at Kenston, original stories and poetry, and feature stories about students and faculty. Mr. Robinson did the photography and the art classes contributed art work. NUGGETS filled a literary gap that Kenston has had for several years. Its monthly publication enabled it to serve as a combination newspaper and magazine. Margot and the staff are to be congratulated for their originality and hard work.

Karsten's American family: Mr. Leslie Oates, Vicki, Mrs. Margaret Oates, Karsten, Randy.

Nukhet Colak from Istanbul, Turkey arrived in August to live in Tanglewood with the Giles. One of her many new experiences was a trip to Florida during Spring Vacation. Her friendliness and sense of humor earned her many friends, who hope to take up her invitation and visit her in Turkey someday.

Karsten (Johann Hinrich) Juhl came last summer from Hamburg, Germany and has lived with the Oates of Lake Lucerne. The friendly German quickly adapted to American life, school, humor, and parties, and he shared many of his interesting German customs, jokes, and songs with us.

Both Nukhet and Karsten have visited Washington D.C., Spent weekends with families in other areas of Cleveland, and made numerous speeches. They did very well in school and all students, especially seniors, enjoyed having them stay and hope they will visit the United States again.

American Field Service

The student chapter of the AFS was very busy this year with three AFS students. The organization welcomed with parties all foreign students as well as returning Kenston students. Kenston hosted a weekend for AFS students from other Cleveland schools, took them to see "Li'l Abner", and gave a banquet. The students helped earn money for the chapter by selling cook-books.

Tesi Bonzano

Maria Teresa Bonzano of Argentina joined the student body in spring. She stayed with the Watsons in Lake Lucerne. Kenston is sorry she could not be here longer. In the short time she was with us she made many friends and her touching graduation speech made a lasting impression on the seniors.

Kenston's A.F.S. Chapter welcomes Tesi.

Pep Club

The Pep Club stimulates spirit at all athletic events. This year the club had the advantage of an unprecedented number of male voices. President Deb Critzer and the mascot, the Grizzly Bear, kept the noise in the grandstand loud. The club also organized the pep rallies and skits like the one at the right.

The Girl's Athletic Association participates in intermural and intramural sports. Track and Basketball are the main sports, but others are played for fun and recreation. The club aims to develop ability and sportsmanship.

K-Klub

The K-Klub is open to all varsity lettermen. Its function is to promote team spirit and unity. Those who survive the initiation are a close-knit group, so it fulfills its objective toward unity. The K-Klub justifies its existence by purchasing the letter awards and trophies. The Klub plans to become less initiation oriented and more service oriented, (but we of the yearbook feel that the initiation is one of Kenston's traditions and should be preserved in a modified state.)

Future Homemakers of America

The FHA has expanded the traditional cooking and sewing of home economics. The club does service projects and works on crafts that will make future homes more interesting. At Christmas, members made wreaths for the teachers' doors. In spring, they planned a fashion show in which members modeled clothes they had made. The FHA encourages girls to develop home economic skills.

F.B.L.A. is a national and state chartered club comprised of 35 members. All of the members have an active interest in business and carry many business classes.

The club has held many money-making activities in order to send some of the members to the state convention. Five members attended the convention in Akron this year.

The F.N.A. gives girls an opportunity to investigate the different areas of the medical field. A movie on the art of bandaging and a speaker from the Child Health Care Center of Geauga County comprised part of the year's activities. The club managed the concession stand at all home wrestling meets which raised the money for the Easter project. The project entailed supplying a needy family with a complete Easter dinner, including Easter Eggs.

Audio-Visual Aids

The purpose of the Audio-Visual Aids Group is to set up, operate, and care for all audio-visual equipment in the school. This includes tape recorders, record players, the public address system, motion picture projectors, slide and film-strip projectors, television receivers, overhead projectors, opaque projectors, and copies and transparencies. They also receive, log, and mail all films and tapes that come into the school.

The I.A.C. has been very active this year. The club did repair jobs for the student council and ran coat checks at athletic events. A new club activity, Open Shop, has been started, allowing members to build and repair objects for the community or work on their school project. The club has gone on several field trips to large manufacturing plants.

Plays

"Androcles and the Lion"

In November, the drama club presented the semi-farce of "Androcles and the Lion." Androcles took a thorn from the paw of a lion and then met the same lion when the Romans put him in the Gladiator's ring. The lion repayed the Christian's earlier kindness and both were allowed to live. Kitty McEwan, as Androcles, and Joe Delgado, as the lion, led the play under the direction of Mr. Clark.

Make-up is an important part of most productions, but for "Hip Hippie Hooray," it was essential. It took quite a bit of artistry to make hippies out of most of the students, but some, like Chris Tammaro, made it easy for the make-up crew. Chris' chin rug was real and the result of five weeks of mild friction between the administration and the play cast. Marsha Korb did a good job creating "hippies" and "squares" from the raw material at Kenston.

Chris and his weird beard.

Marsha working on "square" Kit Hooker.

"Hip Hippie Hooray" is the story of a square girl's search for her hippie brother in Haight-Ashbury. She opens the Eat-In, a free restaurant, in hopes that her brother's stomach will bring him to her. Suzi gets help from some enterprising hippies and makes the Eat-In a profitable venture and falls in love with a semi-straight before her brother shows up. The play was fun for the actors and the audience.

Not pictured in this section is the drama club's third production, the tragedy "Aria Da Capo." This was one of the few serious productions done by the club. The cast and director should be congratulated for both the attempt and the result. Jane Stanek, Marsha Korb, Bob Cherry, Kent Wehle, and Andy Kalejs performed the symbolic protest against war and violence. Mr. Clark directed.

Students, parents, and faculty have been very impressed with our chorus this year. The chorus has sung in assemblies at the high school as well as at Auburn, Gardiner, and the Middle School. Mr. Sisler directed the Christmas Concert and under Miss Gostovich, who became director in January, a Spring Concert was given. Twenty-four members participated in the All-County Chorus in April. This year the Bigelow Vocal Award went to a Kenston student, John Deadwyler, president of the chorus.

Miss Gostavish's plans for next year include a boys' and a girls' glee club, a select chorus, solos and small groups of selected singers performing at assemblies, and piano lessons. The Music Department will also initiate a course in Music Theory and Harmony.

The band gave three concerts this year, aside from those during school assemblies. The Christmas Concert, Spring Concert, and Thank You Concert were all good and showed the leadership of Mr. Sisler and the work of the band members. Several groups won prizes in the District Solo and Ensemble Contest. The Clarinet Trio (Gall, Donaldson, Rogers) got a 2 rating. The highest rating, a 1, was awarded to the Clarinet Choir, (M. Smith, Gall, Rogers, Donaldson, Surdy, Mooney, Hall, Kolson, Bielert, Diehl) and to the Flute Trio (MacLanahan, Neslund, Hawk). The band travelled to General Amherst High School in Ontario, Canada over spring vacation to give a concert. The Canadians enjoyed the concert and the band members enjoyed the trip, so both parties decided that it was a good idea.

Pomp and Circumstance

Karen McConnell
Salutatorian

A father took his teenage daughter to a Broadway show. The following day he admitted that the play was a bit more risqué than he had expected. "I really didn't mind her seeing, it," he said, looking a bit dazed. "What bothered me was that she laughed in all the right places." This father's attitude exemplifies the concern which many parents feel as they watch their children grow up in a seemingly more permissive society. The old rigid behavioral code and the newer code (which seems completely devoid of established rules) live side by side. Most youths reject the pattness of the rigid system and yet are reluctant to adopt the other extreme, so they experiment between the two. This experimentation often causes the adult reaction: "Youths have too much freedom, and not enough responsibility." This is really a misuse of terms. What is meant is that youths have too much opportunity to do that which adults do not want done. A definite distinction ought to be made between this opportunity to do wrong and real freedom.

The German theologian, Dietrich Bonhoeffer, says in his paper entitled FREEDOM, "Freedom can consist only in responsibility." Responsibility is not an antidote to freedom, it is an integral part of it. The responsible man can analyze different causes of action for motivation, value, and purpose. He must see the action in its own context, and not apply it to any pre-fabricated set of rules. It is from this responsible analyzation that principles are made. A principle implies a value judgement, and the responsible man must be continually reevaluating these judgements. The responsible man must be aware that the final blame or credit for his actions lies within himself. He cannot point to another person or an established rule and say, "I did it because of that." If he did he would be denying responsibility for his own actions. He would be in a situation morally similar to that of Timothy Adams, the member of the Cleveland chapter of Hell's Angels, who is now on trial for murder. He said he did fire two shots, but that at the time he was under the influence of whiskey and LSD. If he did commit the murder, he is trying to shift the blame from himself onto the LSD and whiskey. The man who excuses his actions by saying that he merely followed established rules is as irresponsible as Timothy Adams, although the result of his irresponsibility will not be as apparent.

The responsible man is able to analyze a situation, choose a course of action, and assume the consequences. Only the man who is morally free--free from the limitations of established morality--can act on this course. Neither freedom nor responsibility can exist separately. A man is not free unless he is responsible. If he traces his deeds back to specific people or circumstances and places the blame there, then he has surrendered his freedom. He is only a tool of circumstance, not a free and responsible person.

Perhaps it is the recognition of the need for responsible action which leads youth to rebel. Many times rebellion is based on true personal inspection, not pre-determined rules, but there is no real responsibility. There is an element of obedience in freedom which is often overlooked. It would seem that free responsibility is the exercise of one's own judgement and obedience is compliance to someone else's judgement. These two are not necessarily conflicting. Man had to be completely responsible before he established governments. In that theoretical, prehistorical time when man lived independently of other men, he would not have other people or established rules to blame for his actions. He had to operate responsibly. When humans became more numerous, they formed governments. This decision was responsible because these early humans saw intuitively the advantages of living together. The men who formulated our government created a system of responsible obedience; obedience because only through a system of universally enforced laws can order be maintained, and responsible because each citizen must participate in the policy formation and, hence, take partial responsibility for the actions of the government. The man who does not vote is not responsible, but neither is the one who votes with no knowledge of the candidates and issues. The man who is not loyal is not responsible because he has turned his back on a decision which is partially his.

The responsible obedience to our government is called freedom. The citizen has freely chosen to be obedient to the government by his acceptance of citizenship. Part of this obedience is the obligation of the citizen to correct his government when he feels it is wrong. There are many possible corrective steps which fall within the framework of responsible obedience. It is difficult to see how those who choose to operate outside this legal framework can feel that they are operating responsibly. They have ignored one of the major qualifications for responsibility--a realization for the consequences of their actions. By choosing to leave the legal boundaries, they are indirectly condoning others who operate unlawfully. One has only to consider what the country would be like if each individual could choose the laws which he wanted to obey. That is why obedience is responsible. A genuine awareness of the consequences of disobedience seems to be lacking in many disturbances. Robert Hessen, an instructor at the Columbia Graduate School of Business, analyzed the recent rebellion at Columbia in a paper which was reprinted in The Cleveland Plain Dealer on May 28, 1968. He said, "They (the Students for Democratic Society) are indifferent to the fact that their tactics will destroy Columbia University by driving out the best minds just as the Nazi terror tactics drove the Jewish intellectuals out of the universities of Germany." This is a concrete result of irresponsibility. The SDS demanded a full amnesty before they would negotiate. In this they violated one of the prerequisites for responsibility--willingness to take the blame for their actions. The SDS were right in voicing their grievances, but they acted irresponsibly and should not be supported.

The man who took his daughter to the Broadway show interpreted the moral climate of our era as permissive. This is not necessarily true. The breakdown of the rigid morality has left the weight of decision upon individual youth, but it does not follow that youth will be permissive. There is an increased latitude of action which some youth use irresponsibly as license. However, most youth recognize the latitude as the freedom which it is--the freedom which demands responsibility. Freedom is more difficult to live with than moral rigidity. Freedom is more complex. Freedom is more confusing. Freedom is the context in which we must learn to live responsibly.

Freedom and Responsibility

The moment we walk out those doors tonight, we will be freer individuals. As Karen has stated, this freedom bears with it a certain amount of responsibility. Perhaps the most perplexing problem each of us has to solve is what to do with our new-found freedom. Eric Hoffer has said that when people are free to do as they please, they usually imitate each other. Is this what we will do? Or will we stand on tiptoe to see what the future holds for us and then falter because of the obstacles we foresee? If neither of these two choices seems desirable it is because they are not. We owe it to ourselves and to society to accept the burden of responsibility which accompanies our freedom and to go forth and achieve as individuals. No one but the individual knows what he can accomplish and then he only knows after he has tried. It is most important that we try. Today's world is full of unused talents mainly because the individual has not the courage to develop his potential. This situation is due mainly to our society's love for conformity which has destroyed a certain amount of self-reliance in each of us. Ralph Waldo Emerson once said, "The individual dismisses without notice his thoughts primarily because they are his. Then in every work of genius we recognize our own alienated thoughts which come back to us with a certain alienated majesty." However, if we are to achieve, it is important that we regain our self-reliance and our individuality. In this way the gap between what we might become and what we do become can be lessened.

Psychologists believe that most humans act on a basic human impulse that makes a man want to make the most of what is in him and what has been given him. If this is true, then who in the same breath can this age be called the era of the goof-off: when students take cinch courses, when executives think of nothing but golf, when artisans ignore deadlines, when workers leave jobs half done, and when we spend more time finding short cuts than we spend doing a task itself. This paradox is due mainly to the inability of the individual to deal with his freedom and his responsibilities. We need not be classified among the complacent and the lazy. We need not flounder in a state of indecision and helplessness merely because life has no truant officers nor a four point grading scale. Each of us possesses an inquiring mind and if we use it imaginatively and rigorously, few obstacles will confront us. By using our minds in such a manner we will benefit ourselves and each other. We live in a time of such rapid change and growth that only those people who continue to inquire and learn can hope to keep pace. Learning is an everyday experience: the student learns through disciplined study, the executive learns through his contact with people in business, the farmer learns as he tills the soil, the housewife learns as she performs her tasks, and we learn through living. However, this knowledge must not be absorbed as is water into a sponge but must be applied and reapplied in order to be useful. The test of our education is how we apply our knowledge. How we apply our knowledge depends on our self-reliance, which in turn reverts to our capacity for accepting the responsibility which accompanies our freedom. Hence, the way in which we utilize our freedom, the way in which we accept the responsibility which accompanies our freedom, the way in which we develop our self-reliance, and the way in which we continue to inquire and learn determines the shape of our lives.
